

WKU Shanty Hollow Shooting Sports Master Plan

Bowling Green, Kentucky

Client: Western Kentucky University

*Client: Dr. Bruce Lorson
Sports and Recreation Dept.
270-745-2211*

*Project Completed: 2008
(Phase 1 Planning)*

Cost: $50,000,000.00

Project Manager: David White

Project Description:

The Shanty Hollow Shooting Complex at Western Kentucky University will be a regional shooting sports facility located just outside of Bowling Green in Warren County Kentucky. The shooting sports facility will not only serve as a training facility for local police and citizens alike but aims to attract national and international events for the 2016 Olympic games, as well as annual ISSF Championships, and Collegiate events.

Program elements include 4 trap and skeet ranges, 50 meter indoor/outdoor firing range with 100 firing points, 25 meter indoor/outdoor firing range with 42 firing points, 10 meter indoor firing range with 122 firing points, 12-30 yard outdoor shooting ranges, 4 outdoor archery ranges, an awards platform with spectator seating, a dynamic exhibition plaza with fountains and gathering spaces, various athlete and official lounges, several support services structures such as gun smiths, a 20,000 sf. restaurant and gift shop, trail system with designated fishing docks, administrative security and classroom buildings, 800 parking spaces, bus drop off areas, entrance plazas with ticket booths, and a perimeter security fence.